

Health Professions Education Institute (HPEI)
2022 Medical Educator Conference

Oral Presenter Bios

Amelia L. Davidson, BS, MS3 Medical Student, Wake Forest School of Medicine

As a rising medical educator, my interest in medical education is to improve the "translation" of medicine to its learners - regardless of background. My goal is to increase opportunity and access to those who truly strive for it.

Catherine Malisse, B.S., M.D. Candidate, Class of 2025

My experience as head of the Student Advising Leadership Council at Wake Forest University fostered my passion for student mentorship. I've also had the opportunity to connect with many individuals in the field of medical education while working at MSKCC and during my first year of medical school, which has sparked my interest in pursuing a career that includes medical education.

Jaclyn Martindale, DO (she/her), Assistant Professor of Pediatric Neurology, Department of Neurology

I am a clinician-educator and the Assistant Program Director of our Child Neurology Residency Program. My interests include the field of digital education and shaping the next generation of clinician-educators.

Nathan J. Bates, He/Him/His, MMS, PA-C, Assistant Professor Dept. of PA Studies,

I am an Assistant Professor in WFSM Dept. of PA Studies with special interest in gamification strategies to enhance experiential learning opportunities for medical learners. I also hold interest in utilizing mobile app or VR technologies for augmenting spaced-learning techniques and simulation exercises.
