

Catherine Matthews, M.D. FACS, FACOG

Professor of Urology and Gynecology

Dr. Matthews is Professor of Urology and Gynecology at Wake Forest Baptist Health where she serves as the Fellowship Director and Co-Director of the joint service line for Female Pelvic Medicine and Reconstructive Surgery. Dr. Matthews is passionate about patient care and medical education and has received numerous awards for outstanding clinical service as well as a multitude of local and national teaching awards. Dr. Matthews is the Chair of the Education Committee for the International Urogynecology Association and serves as a national board examiner for Obstetrics and Gynecology. She is frequently invited to lecture and perform live surgery at conferences nationally and internationally. Dr. Matthews' research areas include outcomes of prolapse repair; fecal incontinence; bladder pain syndrome and stem cell therapy for urinary and bowel incontinence and has contributed almost 100 publications to the peer-reviewed literature.